Roles and Responsibilities

ANA Board of Directors President

SUMMARY:

The ANA President provides strong leadership for ANA and sets a sound and accurate course for its future. Participates in setting policy. Develops short-range and long-range objectives against which to review program progress and measure the effectiveness of the Association in accomplishing its purposes. Exercises decisive administrative and leadership ability in order to set a course of action for the Association. Has specific legal and fiscal responsibilities to the members of the Association. Acts in good faith and for the best interests of the Association.

The ANA President serves as chief elected officer of the Association, acts as official representative of the Association and as its chief spokesperson on matters of Association policy and positions. The ANA President provides the vital link between leaders and policy makers within the Association and those throughout the healthcare field. The ANA President exercises personal leadership in the motivation of other officers and directors on the ANA Board of Directors, elected and appointed officials, ANA staff, and the membership.

SPECIFIC RESPONSIBILITIES:

Leadership Responsibilities for the office of the ANA President:

1. Serves as a member and chairs the meetings of the ANA Board of Directors and ANA Board of Directors Executive Committee. As the chair of the ANA Board of Directors Executive Committee, which has the full power of the ANA Board of Directors to transact business between board meetings, the ANA President, along with other members of the ANA Board of Directors Executive Committee, reviews and acts upon all critical assistance requests from constituent members.
2. Informs the ANA Board of Directors, ANA Board of Directors Executive Committee, members of ANA's committees, and individual members of Constituent and State Nurses Associations (C/SNAs), Individual Member Division (IMD), and Organizational Affiliates on the conditions and operations of the Association.
3. Chairs the ANA Board of Directors strategic planning sessions, and guides the board and ANA Membership Assembly in formulating policies, positions, position statements, and programs that will further the goals and objectives of the Association.
4. Chairs membership meetings of the American Nurses Foundation (ANF).

5. Chairs meetings and joint strategic planning sessions with presidents of the American Academy of Nursing (AAN), American Nurses Credentialing Center (ANCC), and ANF.
6. Serves as a member of the C/SNA Support Committee.
7. Chairs the Institute for Nursing Research and Education.
8. Chairs meetings of the ANA Membership Assembly and special meetings and serves as a voting representative of the board.
9. Serves as an ex-officio voting member of all ANA Membership Assembly and ANA Board of Directors committees, except the Nominations and Elections Committee.
10. Participates in the Tri-Council for Nursing, which is comprised of representatives from ANA, American Association of Colleges of Nursing, American Organization of Nurse Executives, and the National League for Nursing.
11. Serves as ANA's representative, with ANA's Chief Executive Officer (CEO), to the International Council of Nurses' Council of Nurse Representatives meetings.
12. Offers guidance and consultation to the ANA CEO, elected and appointed officials of the Association, and constituents as necessary and/or requested.
13. Provides testimony to Congressional groups on the nursing profession and Association priorities and issues.
14. Supports and defends policies, positions, and programs adopted by the ANA Board of Directors and ANA Membership Assembly.
15. Promotes communications and positive working relationships with ANA's subsidiaries.

Organizational Responsibilities for the office of the ANA President:

1. Acts as official spokesperson for the Association to the public, press, legislative bodies, and national and international allied health organizations on matters of policy within the confines of the policies established by the ANA Membership Assembly and the ANA Board of Directors. Serves as the public relations ambassador for the profession. Uses discretionary powers to assign responsibility for such representation as necessary.¹
2. In conjunction with ANA staff, plans and approves the agendas for meetings of the ANA Board of Directors, ANA Board of Directors Executive Committee, ANA Membership Assembly, and meetings of presidents and other elected officials of ANA subsidiaries.
3. Reports to the membership at the ANA Membership Assembly and at other appropriate times.

¹ The basic principle of the delegation of powers and duties is that the ANA President retains full accountability for the performance or exercise of those powers and duties that have been delegated. The ANA President is also responsible for consequences that arise out of the exercise of delegated authority.

4. Reports verbally and in writing to the ANA Board of Directors at its regular meetings and reports by memoranda as necessary between meetings.
5. May appoint ANA members to standing committees of the ANA Board of Directors including, Audit Committee, Committee on Appointments, Committee on Honorary Awards, Committee on Planning and Budget, Employee Relations Committee, as well as to special committees and ad hoc working groups. Appoints board members as liaisons to each C/SNA.
6. Promotes ANA member interest and active participation in the Association and reports board and Association activities to members by means of e-mails, letters, summaries, speeches, and scheduled conference calls with the C/SNA and IMD leadership.
7. Notifies constituent members and others who hold seats in the ANA Membership Assembly in writing at least 90 days prior to a special meeting of the ANA Membership Assembly.

General Administrative Powers and Duties of the ANA President

There are two general types of administrative powers and duties which are the responsibility of the ANA President: discretionary and ministerial. The discretionary powers and duties are those that depend upon a special trust in the ANA President and involve personal reliance on the president's wisdom, integrity, and discretion. Discretionary powers assigned to the ANA president by the ANA Bylaws can never be delegated. Ministerial powers are duties that involve the faithful performance of an administrative function, such as giving speeches, which do not involve discretionary power. These duties may be delegated to board members or ANA staff

TERM OF OFFICE:

Elected by majority vote of the ANA Membership Assembly for a two-year term; may not serve more than two consecutive terms in the office of ANA President, or more than eight consecutive years on the Board of Directors.

QUALIFICATIONS:

Must hold current individual membership in a C/SNA or the IMD; may not concurrently serve as an officer or director of another organization if such participation might result in a conflict of interest with ANA. Should have basic knowledge of parliamentary law and procedures. Should have a familiarity with the ANA Bylaws and other Association policies.

As the chief elected officer, brings knowledge and skills on nursing and professional organizations to the Association and ANA Board of Directors including financial, policy, political, regulatory, practice and standards, economic theory, and forecasting capabilities. Represents the Association as the official spokesperson, is a forceful public speaker and a positive role model to nursing and ANA. The ANA President shall possess the skills necessary to analyze financial statements, engage in strategic visioning, and use computers and technology efficiently.

TIME COMMITMENT:

The office of ANA President is a full-time position, which is compensated by an honorarium in an amount determined by the ANA Board of Directors for each biennium. The ANA President's time is devoted to fulfilling the duties of the office and compensation for services is to be provided "at the option of the person serving in the office." Individual style and personal commitments shall determine the time devoted to presidential duties and activities. Frequent travel is required both to the ANA headquarters and to other sites to fulfill the ANA spokesperson role. More than 125 plus travel days per year should be anticipated.

Board Operating Policy

Policy #: 10.2

Title: HONORARIUM FOR THE ANA PRESIDENT, ANCC PRESIDENT, AND MEMBERS OF ENTITY BOARDS OF DIRECTORS

Affects: ANA Board of Directors

Authority:

Effective: November 11, 2015

Replaces: February 28, 2014

POLICY:

ANA President

1. Based upon a full-time professional commitment to ANA, Presidential compensation should be an honorarium. The November or December prior to an election, the Employee Relations Committee (ERC) will review the current honorarium and recommend a new amount to be approved by the ANA Board of Directors.
2. The honorarium should be set at a certain amount regardless of the economic circumstances the person had before the election.
3. In addition, the compensation package should include health, pension benefits, and other fringe benefits equivalent to the level of fringe benefits enjoyed by the ANA President from a prior employer. If the ANA President is not able to maintain those benefits from a prior employer, the compensation package should include fringe benefits equivalent to the percent (%) of salary value of ANA staff benefits or ANA should provide those benefits. In the event that benefits are derived from a previous employer at a cost higher than the ANA level, ANA will pay the difference for those benefits up to 5%. In the event that benefits are derived from a previous employer at a cost lower than the ANA level, ANA will pay at the level set by the previous employer.
4. ANA should not provide additional vacation and sick leave benefits as they are covered by the honorarium.
5. The Office of the ANA President is in ANA Headquarters and is to be staffed in

Headquarters. Special needs of the ANA President for off-site support will be discussed and negotiated with the ERC and ANA's Chief Executive Officer.

6. There should be a mechanism for adjustment if compensation has been paid, and the President is unable to complete the term of office.
7. The ANA Board of Directors will address unusual circumstances brought forward by an ANA President or the ANA Board of Directors and consider adjustments to the compensation. Prior to the completion of the term of office, the outgoing ANA President can address Presidential transition support pursuant to ANA Board of Directors Operating Policy 10.9. A request for transition support will be directed to the ERC and the ANA Board of Directors.
8. Revision of the compensation policy that indicates how the honorarium for the ANA President are calculated should be recommended by the ERC and approved by the ANA Board of Directors.
9. Any outside funds paid for the services of the individual serving as the ANA President during the term of office shall be paid directly to the ANA.
10. The ANA Election Manual should include the presidential compensation policy.

ANCC President

11. The ANCC Board of Directors will make the decision regarding the appropriate level of honorarium for the ANCC President.
12. To ensure parity between the ANCC and ANA Presidents, the ERC will review changes in the ANCC President's honorarium level upon request of the Chief ANCC Officer (Executive Director), the ANCC President, or a member of the ERC.
13. Considerations regarding the appropriate level of the ANCC President's honorarium will include but not be limited to the number of hours spent on ANCC business by the ANCC President; parity between the ANA and ANCC Presidents' honoraria based upon the hours spent on ANA and ANCC business, respectively; and the relative scope of responsibility.
14. Recommendations regarding the level of the ANCC President's honorarium will be made by the ANA Board of Directors to the ANCC Board of Directors after consideration by the ERC.

ANA and ANCC Directors

15. The ANA and ANCC Boards of Directors will set any honoraria or stipend paid to members of their respective boards of directors.
16. Service on a non-profit board of directors is typically a volunteer activity. ANA does not intend to establish a pattern or expectation of compensation for members of the boards of directors.

17. An honorarium may be approved for an officer or director of the enterprise boards of directors/trustees under the following circumstances:
 - a. Projects undertaken by a director or officer on behalf of the organization that far exceed the typical amount of time spent as a member of the board of directors;
 - b. Projects that involve an exceptional level of experience or expertise;
 - c. Projects that have an impact on the officer or director's work life or home life because of the intensity of the work or the level of travel required.
18. The amount of the honorarium will be meaningful, but not held to commercial employment or consultancy levels.
19. Responsibilities will be clearly identified, and the project and honorarium will be time limited, with at least an annual evaluation of the appropriateness of continuing the honorarium.
20. Recommendations regarding the level of an ANCC officer's or director's honorarium will be made by the ANA Board of Directors to the ANCC Board of Directors after consideration by the ERC.

Board of Directors Candidates

Self-Reflection of Leadership and Governance Competencies

Introduction

As the American Nurses Association (ANA) implements its mission, nurses advancing our profession to improve health for all, the association will continue to need a diverse pool of leaders who possess both leadership and governance competencies that enable them to lead effectively and strategically.

- Leadership Competencies: ANA collaborated with the Center for Creative Leadership® to define a set of leadership competencies¹ and associated behaviors for advanced leaders² in three distinct domains: Leading Yourself, Leading Others, and Leading the Organization. While anchored in ANA's Scope and Standards of Practice, these competencies transcend specialty or profession.
- Governance Competencies: There are key governance competencies³ that are needed for members of the ANA Board of Directors to discharge their duties effectively. As fiduciaries of the association, members of the ANA Board of Directors must act at all times in the association's best interest, oversee financial and operational performance, and safeguard the association's resources.

Voluntary Self-Reflection of Competencies

The Nominations and Elections Committee encourages individuals interested in seeking election to the ANA Board of Directors to engage in a voluntary self-reflection of their leadership and governance competencies to a) determine the degree to which they possess the competencies that have been deemed important to serve successfully and efficiently, and b) identify competency areas that they may wish to develop more fully before seeking election to the ANA Board of Directors.

² The competencies for advanced leaders are derived from the Center for Creative Leadership® Competency Library and included in ANA's Competency Model, which was developed for ANA's Leadership Institute.

³ The governance competencies were derived from the following three sources: Competency-Based Governance: A Foundation for Board and Organizational Effectiveness (February 2009) and The Guide to Good Governance for Hospital Boards (December 2009) both published by the American Hospital Association's Center for Healthcare Governance and Board Member Competencies developed by Judith A. Oulton for the International Council of Nurses (2011).

Appendix A: Definitions and Concepts Related to Competence

A number of terms are central to the discussion of competence:

- An individual who demonstrates “competence” is performing at an expected level. The Institute of Medicine (IOM, 2003), defined professional competence as “the habitual and judicious use of communication, knowledge, technical skills, clinical reasoning, emotions, values, and reflection in daily practice for the benefit of the individuals and community being served.”
- A competency is an expected level of performance that integrates knowledge, skills, abilities, and judgment.
- The integration of knowledge, skills, abilities, and judgment occurs in formal, informal, and reflective learning experiences.
- Knowledge encompasses thinking, understanding of theories, professional standards of practice, and insights gained from context, practical experiences, personal capabilities, and leadership performance.
- Skills include communication, interpersonal, and problem-solving skills.
- Ability is the capacity to act effectively. It requires listening, integrity, self-awareness, emotional intelligence, and openness to feedback.
- Judgment includes critical thinking, problem solving, ethical reasoning, and decision making.
- Interprofessional refers to the shared relationship among individuals, groups, and organizations from different disciplines. The synergies created through groups, committees, and projects that comprise individuals from different disciplines; the impact of teamwork.
- Interdisciplinary as used in this context refers to cross disciplines of health and health care (e.g., medicine, pharmacology, nursing) and business (e.g., leadership, communications, finance).
- Transformational leadership includes the competencies required to inspire and stimulate followers to achieve extraordinary outcomes and in the process, develop their own leadership capacity. They help followers grow and develop into leaders by responding to needs, empowering the individual, and aligning the goals and objectives across the span from follower/subordinate to leader to organization.
- Formal learning most often occurs in structured, academic, and professional development practice environments, while informal learning can be described as experiential insights gained in work, community, home, and other settings.

- Reflective learning represents the recurrent thoughtful personal self-assessment, analysis, and synthesis of strengths and opportunities for improvement. Such insights should lead to the creation of a specific plan for professional development and may become part of one's professional portfolio.
